President's Message

Greetings!

The crippling effects suffered by most of us during the recent ice storm has really made us appreciate the strength and pioneering spirit of our ancestors. We have experienced the use of candles and oil lamps for light, transporting water, and limited use of bathroom facilities. But, like our ancestors conquering new lands, we survived with the same determination and fortitude. Whoever said necessity is the mother of invention got it right!

However, lack of electricity has really put us behind in our work and I apologize for being later than usual answering letters that have come to our Society. We do appreciate our mail and ask that everyone be patient. Your letters will be answered.

Another thing that has evoked a lot of thought toward some of my ancestors is the Olympics being staged in Norway. To see some of the film of the countryside and the peoples and customs of that country has caused me to wonder why some of our Scandinavian ancestors chose to leave such beauty. Well, history tells us that they were nomadic peoples who loved adventure. That adventurous spirit, along with certain political sufferings, eventually brought them to America.

Someone recently asked why so many people came into this part of the country during the 1850's and 1860's. While I don't as yet have a specific answer to that question, I believe a reading of the history of what was going on in the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi would give a pretty good idea of such movement to settle west of the Mississippi River. Throughout history whenever there was an exodus of peoples from one country to another, the cause was usually religious and/or political persecution. In the southern United States, war was immanent, secession was the main topic of conversation, tempers were flaring and uprisings and unrest were prevalent in every phase of life. Anxiety and fear for the future caused many families to pack up and move westward to find peace. Also, by that time, this area was already populated by persons who had relatives and friends back in those Southern states. They wrote telling of the good farm land and virgin timber. Desiring to better their way of life, many followed. After the War Between the States was over, many more came because they had lost everything and the military rule, carpetbaggers, etc., had all but destroyed their identity and personal dignity. The so-called Reconstruction with Federal military rule lasted more years than most of us realize. In fact, Georgia did not regain statehood until 1877, and according to first-hand information, life was pretty unbearable during that time.

Have a wonderful Spring season, and Happy Hunting!

Blanche H. Gurlington
